Do you agree that the Exchange should apply its existing trading halt and suspension policy to SPACs (see paragraphs 249 to 251 of the Consultation Paper)?

Please give reasons for your views.

Question 30

Do you agree that the Exchange should apply new listing requirements to a De-SPAC Transaction as set out in paragraphs 259 to 281 of the Consultation Paper?

No

Please give reasons for your views.

The current proposal requires the Successor Company to meet all new listing requirements (including the minimum market capitalization requirements and financial eligibility tests).

We understand that the rationale behind the current proposal is to address the risk that SPACs could be used to circumvent the quantitative and qualitative criteria for a new listing and prevent the listing of sub-standard businesses and/or assets, and thereby safeguard the quality and reputation of the Hong Kong market as a whole.

However, we also appreciate that the key advantages of SPACs, which contribute towards its popularity, are notably the flexibility in deal structuring, upfront price discovery and certainty, and improved execution speed and rate. With that in mind, we take the view that the current proposal of applying new listing requirements to a De-SPAC Transaction could potentially set off these key advantages or even defeat the purpose of setting up SPAC regime in Hong Kong, for the following reasons:-

(1) If the qualification requirements (e.g. minimum market capitalization and financial eligibility tests) and level of scrutiny from the Stock Exchange and the SFC are similar between listing via a traditional IPO or via a SPAC, then a De-SPAC Target may as well opt for IPO-listing and it would have more control and visibility over the process, and such process has already been familiarized among professional advisors in Hong Kong market.

(2) This lack of incentives for De-SPAC Targets to engage in SPAC-listing will at the same time increase the difficulty for SPACs to locate suitable De-SPAC Targets and to complete the De-SPAC Transaction within the given timeframe. If it turns out that the successful rate of De-SPAC Transaction is low, potential SPAC Promoters/investors will gradually lose their interests in the SPAC regime. Institutional and professional investors will consider other investment opportunities rather than SPAC.

(3) Last but not least, despite similar stringent listing eligibility requirements to the Successor Company (close to or equal to new listing requirements) are equally applied by the US exchanges, in comparison to the Hong Kong listing regime, the US exchanges (particularly NASDAQ) generally provide a wider choice of financial eligibility tests depending on the applicant's choice of market segment. As such, as a Successor Company is more likely to satisfy the requirements of any one of the tests within the US listing regime than the current proposal by the Stock Exchange, the HK regime may be less competitive and attractive.

In light of the above, our alternative proposals are as follows:-

(1) Relax the De-SPAC procedures/criteria, in particular, removing or appropriately lowering the threshold in minimum market capitalization requirement, financial eligibility tests, track record period etc. for Successor Companies; and

(2) in return, allowing only professional and/or institutional investors to participate throughout the SPAC life (i.e. even after De-SPAC Transaction) as they require less protection. Retail investors will not be allowed to invest in Successor Company at all, or will only be allowed to participate/invest in the Successor Company after a certain period and/or upon satisfying certain eligibility criteria.

There are a number of Mainland boards that are restricted to institutional investors or eligible individual or professional investors only. To name a few:-

(1) Shanghai STAR Market, under Stock Connect limited to institutional professional investors, which is limited to institutional investors and individual professional investors;

(2) ChiNext Market, under Stock Connect limited to institutional professional investors, which is limited to professional investors and certain eligible individual investors; and

(3) the newly proposed New Beijing board, details of which have not been announced yet but it is expected to be similar to the two above examples in terms of investor eligibility.

Our vision is that this alternative proposal would be able to strike a balance between protecting the interests of investors and the Hong Kong market as a whole, while also preserving the unique flexibility allowed in SPACs.

No

Please give reasons for your views.

We do not agree that SPAC should provide holders redemption for full compensation of issue price at SPAC's initial offering plus accrued interest. We note that the US rules provide for redemption amount which is the pro rata amount in trust account less taxes payable and amounts for working capital purposes, UK rules provide for redemption of ring-fenced cash proceeds less pre-agreed running costs, and Singapore rules provide for redemption amount to be less administrative expenses of SPAC IPO, general working capital expenses and related expenses for identifying and completing De-SPAC transaction. Considering that Hong Kong is already limiting SPAC securities to Professional Investors only, we propose that Hong Kong should allow redemption amount to be the pro rata amount of the ring-fenced SPAC funds less administrative expenses of SPAC IPO, general working capital expenses and related expenses for De-SPAC transaction (which can be up to any agreed limit). Otherwise, it may be overly onerous for SPAC promoters to assume all such costs and risks for the SPAC (which may seriously deter the interest of potential SPAC promoters), while at the same time it should be reasonable for Professional Investors (including institutional professional investors) to bear the related costs and not have a risk-free investment of participating in the SPAC IPO.

No

Please give reasons for your views.

Under the proposal to return 100% of funds raised at initial offering plus accrued interest, we also ask for clarification with respect to para 230 which proposes to allow SPAC initial offering proceeds to be held in cash or cash-equivalent or short-term securities of the required minimum credit rating, whether the SPAC promoters will bear any risk of short fall (to the extent of any risk) – if expected to return 100% of funds plus accrued interest, or if such holding generates any return, whether SPAC promoters as remaining shareholders will have the benefit of any gain. However, we do not agree that a SPAC should be required to return to investors / shareholders 100% of funds raised from the initial offering plus accrued interest if the SPAC fails as described. We note the US provides for liquidation distribution (not requiring full restitution plus interest), UK requires return of gross proceeds less pre-agreed SPAC running costs, and Singapore requires return of amount held in trust at the time of liquidation distribution net of taxes payable and direct expenses related to the liquidation distribution. Considering that Hong Kong is already limiting SPAC securities to Professional Investors only, we propose that Hong Kong should allow redemption amount to be the pro rata amount of the ring-fenced SPAC funds less administrative expenses of SPAC IPO, general working capital expenses and related expenses for De-SPAC transaction (which can be up to any agreed limit), and expenses relating to liquidation and distribution. Otherwise, it may be overly onerous for SPAC promoters to assume all such costs and risks for the SPAC (which may seriously deter the interest of potential SPAC promoters), while at the same time it should be reasonable for Professional Investors (including institutional professional investors) to bear the related costs and not have a risk-free investment of participating in the SPAC IPO.

Please give reasons for your views.

Question 67

Do you agree with our proposal to require that a listing application for or on behalf of a SPAC be submitted no earlier than one month (rather than two months ordinarily required) after the date of the IPO Sponsor's formal appointment?

Please give reasons for your views.

Question 68

Should the Exchange exempt SPACs from any Listing Rule disclosure requirement prior to a De-SPAC Transaction, or modify those requirements for SPACs, on the basis that the SPAC does not have any business operations during that period?

Please give reasons for your views.
